

Steve,

Thanks for the reply on the Elitecaraudio forum!
I thought about just giving a call today, but figured I would email and let you read at your leisure! LOL!

As I briefly went over on Elite... I am obviously interested in car audio... (Since the late 70's) although most of my tinkering in car audio has been pretty mild...

Recently I have become more interested in putting a little more time into it as a hobby of sorts.

In reading and lurking on the forums I really became familiar with Zed Audio and all the work you have done.

In reading your tech notes and posts I have to admit that I have really gotten an insight to some of your thoughts and approaches to electronics design, as well as had quite a few laughs during the read!! Who says electronics is boring???(Other than my wife!) Smile!
I have been around electronics all my life (my father even got me a part time job when I young testing tubes in a TV repair shop) and I will have to say your approach is the most refreshing that I have come across! I know of no other car amplifier manufacturer who is as honest and open about their product as you are!

I would really like to use your amp designs in my project PT Cruiser... (Daily driver as well as casual weekend car club excuse... LOL!)

Sincerely,
Terry Powers